EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Wreck of the Toronto

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The brig Crillar arrived from Liverpool yesterday. On the 2d of Oct she picked up a Spanish negro in a boat belonging to the bark Toronto of Glasgow wrecked near Nassau but when and under what circumstances could not be learned from the negro. The crew abandoned the bark in the same boat and all perished except the negro. He was insensible when found. A reporter had a talk with the rescued seaman from which it appears that soon after leaving Nassau a furious storm arose and at 11 at night the foremast broke off close to the deck. They cut away the mast and an hour after the mainmast went leaving only the mizzen mast. The tempest was very violent. The captain was below sleeping and the first mate lying on deck disabled by a nail in his foot. Land was then discovered by the captain, called under whose orders all hands took to the long boat which was almost filled with water and seven of the men were washed away. Some of them clung to the oars and were soon washed away, and the violence of the waves speedily upset the boat away from the vessel. There were now seven men in the boat with no provisions. For days they drifted without food but securing a little water from rains. From the negro's account it seems clear the men lost their reason. He describes them as with gaze looking at the sea and sky; some leaped into the sea, some lay on their backs with their parched mouths open and so died. Others lay at the boat's side until they died speaking not a word to their companions. One by one they all went, throwing themselves or being thrown into the sea. At length he alone was left. He ate the sea weed to sustain life, he caught a sea bird occasionally and sometimes a fish. When found he was almost dead, being [illegible] the side of his head drooping over his bosom. He could not move. The boat of the Toronto on board the Crillar shows where it had been scraped by the men for [illegible] of the fish that clung to the sides.

Mutiny and Murder.

A special from London says a telegram from Rochelle, dated the 11th, states that a bottle containing the following, was picked up Nov. 8th off the coast of Meleewe Diepe: "The crew of the British ship Leande, Capt. Harfield from Antwerp for New York mutinied on the 31st of October and killed the master, mate and boatswain." A telegram from Rochelle dated Nov. 10th, states that the government steamer discovered the British ship Leande of Yarmouth, with a boy and five men on board, four of whom are supposed to be accomplices in the mutiny. Six of the crew are Greeks, and escaped in a boat the previous evening.

Steamship Owners to be Prosecuted

The steamer Waco, burned in Galveston harbor, had on board 800 cases petroleum. The vessel had no right to carry this oil being without the necessary certificate, and her owners will be prosecuted.

How Does Jay Gould Know?

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The Herald editorially doubts the story of Jay Gould's private advice that the supreme court has determined to affirm the court of claims decision in the Union Pacific railway case. His ability to purchase such advance information would necessarily involve the honor of some member of the court. The Herald believes the story cunningly devised for speculative purposes, and characterizes the Union Pacific as a dangerous stock, which doesn't represent a dollar of contributed capital and it is only natural that some are circulating all shares which dupes can be induced to buy.

Capt. J. D. Howell.

[illegible], Nov. 12.—Capt. Jeff D. Howell commander of the steamship Pacific, lost a few days ago on the Oregon coast, was a brother of Mrs. Jeff Davis of this city. He is a native of Natchez, and lived at New Orleans several years and served in the ship [illegible] under the confederate flag [illegible] Semmes. Some months since he [illegible] to the command of the Pacific for [illegible] displayed in rescuing shipwrecked people [illegible] storm. Railroad in Chancery.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 12.—The directors of the Missouri [illegible] have been served with notice that application will be made to-day to Judge Treat, of the United States Court, for the appointment of a receiver for that road.

Col. Joyce Wanted at St. Louis.

[illegible] made by District Attorney Bosford [illegible] District Court at Jefferson City yesterday, for an order to remove Col. John Joyce to St. Louis under a requisition from the District Court here. Argument on the application will be heard to-day. It is said that Col. Joyce wants to hear his witnesses in the whisky cases.

Moody and Sankey.

[illegible] the ministers held a meeting in Lay College adjoining the Brooklyn Tabernacle [illegible] building and [illegible]. There were over 100 clergymen from various [illegible] the tabernacle, and Moody had the doors closed that they might have [illegible]. The doors were opened and the building filled to its utmost capacity. The [illegible] were [illegible], and Moody prayed for a blessing.

Sanitary Association.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 12.—The American Public Health Association met this forenoon and admitted new members. The executive committee was instructed to memorialize Congress in favor of such legislation as will bring about a proper co-operation between the general government and the various State governments for a uniform and efficient system of registry of births, deaths and marriages. A committee was appointed to determine what papers received should be published in full, in abstract or by title, if the friends of the association do not warrant the publication of all in full. The special committee to carry into effect the plan for a system of survey of the United States includes Dr. L. R. [illegible] of Illinois, and Dr. H. B. Baker of Michigan. A number of papers were then read. Complimentary resolutions were then passed and the association adjourned sine die.

The Brooklyn Ulcer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Judge Moore of Brooklyn has [illegible] to grant an order for a commission to take the testimony of Mr and Mrs Joseph Richards in the Loeder perjury case. Counsel for Loeder stated that he should probably apply for an order to take testimony in other States. He states that [illegible] he would call forth the evidence of nearly all the parties not previously examined, who are able to give information bearing on the case between Beecher & Tilton.

Jury Hung.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—The jury in the Ward will case were unable to agree on a verdict, and were discharged at 3:30 P. M.

Ship Ashore.

The ship Australian which was driven on shore at the mouth of San Bernard river, is reported to be lying in 12 feet of water, and it is expected she will soon be towed into deep water and proceed to New Orleans for repairs.

Business Failures and Suspensions.

BOSTON, Nov 12.—The Commercial Bulletin's list of failures and suspensions for the week gives 19 in Boston and 11 for places in New England. Among them [illegible] Cutter Tower & Co [illegible]; their liabilities were stated to be [illegible], nominal assets $188,000. It is thought the firm will pay 30 cents. C. Hall & Co., boot and shoe dealers, Boston, offer their creditors 40 cents on the dollar and a settlement will probably be made. The New England Carpet Co. and Gustavus Abbott & Co., carpet dealers, Boston, are reported failed. Liabilities said to be $100,000 each. W. K. Lacey, [illegible] merchant of Pittsfield, Me., has suspended; liabilities between $4,000 and $100,000. [illegible] merchant, Cheshire, Mass., has failed. Liabilities $50,000.

Dairy Business Depressed.

NEW YORK, Nov 12.—Two failures in the butter and cheese trade are announced: Armstrong & Morrison and [illegible].

Too Many Failures

Bondy & Schwartzkopf, tobacco dealers, have failed and will probably pay 50 cents on the dollar. They say the tobacco trade has been depressed and they have sustained bad losses.

A Business View.

Business men according to the mercantile agents' reports do not regard the numerous small failures this season as serious. The [illegible] that the business depression has passed its extreme point but the [illegible] experienced so far in the fall is not expected before spring.

Railroad Collision

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 12.—Two engines and several cars were smashed. W. W. [illegible] master mason of the road killed and a passenger injured by a collision on the Grand Trunk railroad near Lewiston to-day.

Run on a Dime Savings Bank

NEWARK, Nov. 12.—There was a run to-day upon the Dime Savings Bank by small depositors, excited by the recent failure of Wm. Reynolds, private banker, who was manager of the institution. The crowd was so great that the police was required at the doors. The bank has over two million dollars deposits safely invested and ample funds to meet an emergency.

Boiler Explosion

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 12.—The boiler and engine of Matthew Morgan exploded on the Stonington railroad to-night and badly injured two engineers, Wm. Sisk and H. Lewis, and less seriously three others.

Suspicions of Foul Play.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—George Griswold, a well known merchant of the firm of J. N. & G. Griswold, has been missing since Saturday evening near his own house. He is known to have $10,000 and $1,500 to $4,000 worth of jewelry about his person. It is feared that he has been murdered for abduction.

Another Fire.

NORWICH, Con., Nov. 12.—The large mill at Moosup in the town of Plainfield owned by Sampson Almy & Co. and leased by Whipple & Fairbanks of Rhode Island for the manufacture of satinets, was burned. Loss $40,000. Insurance $30,000.

Raid on a Still

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—A raid was made to-day on an illicit still in a place near the North river and the property seized valued at $150,000. The parties in charge having received word escaped. The property seized consisted of a large still and connections having a capacity of 800 gallons each and filled with mash, 8 hogsheads of [illegible], 30 barrels of whisky and [illegible] force pumps besides other articles. A large crowd gathered in the appearance of the officers but offered no violence.

WASHINGTON CITY

Report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue

WASHINGTON, Nov 11.—The commissioner of internal revenue has completed his report for the fiscal year ending June 30 1875. The document is very voluminous. The commissioner says it may be a consolation to know that grievous as are the burdens laid upon such of our population, forty two millions or more, consume the articles taxed by our internal revenue laws. The British public numbering less by one fourth than our people paid under the excise laws during the year ending March 31 1875 taxes (measured in gold of the United States) to the amount of $183,262,000, against $110,545,000 paid in currency by the people of this country during the fiscal year ending June 30 1875. The report shows that the actual amount of receipts into the treasury from all sources from and after June 30 1861 to June 30 1874 exclusive of loans and treasury notes, was as follows:

Customs	$1,[illegible]73,000,000
Internal revenue	1,9[illegible]3,000,000
Direct tax	14,810,000
Public lands	[illegible],000,000
Miscellaneous	235,000,000
Premium on loans and sales of gold coin	102,000,000
Total	$4,[illegible],030,000

The commissioner says with regard to the additional legislation required to enforce the honest collection of taxes on distilled spirits: "I give it as my opinion that the only law necessary is one that shall make the requirements as stringent and the penalties for defrauding the government as severe in the case of the rectifier as they now are in the case of the distiller. The rectifier should be required to give bond in amount equal to the tax represented by all the spirits he can possibly rectify each month. The house and tract of land upon which the establishment is located should be forfeited to the United States in case of fraud. He should not be allowed to handle any spirits at his rectifying house except those he purchases for rectification and sells under rectifier's stamps. Under the present system of detecting frauds at least thirty days must elapse before the discovery could be made and the guilt fixed. As the apparatus in the rectifying house is capable of refining a quantity of spirits upon which the tax would amount to $100,000 a month it may not be worth more than $10,000. It will readily be seen that under the present law which only forfeits the apparatus and spirits owned by him at the time of the seizure a rectifier may aid in defrauding the government of $100,000 and forfeit only $10,000. By absconding to a foreign country he also escapes criminal punishment. I have also to suggest that the law now in force in regard to the returns to be made by rectifiers is so indefinite that some legislation is needed to enforce the regulations of the Commissioner. I also think it would be better if rectifiers, distillers and wholesale liquor dealers were required to make transcripts of their books monthly, instead of this labor being performed by local officers as at present. It would relieve officers of an immense amount of labor and would accomplish the more important result of preventing the destruction of books by parties about to be detected in fraud. There would then be a sworn copy in this office that would always be admissible evidence in the courts against the guilty parties. I am of opinion that the present large tax upon distilled spirits can be collected with but small loss. This opinion is based upon the fact that every storekeeper, gauger and employe who is connected with the distillery where the fraud is perpetrated be made a pensioner upon the distiller. If therefore distillers be kept under such strict surveillance that the amount of money gained by fraud is not sufficient to pay a large corps of officers and workmen in necessary collusion with them to consummate fraud they will, as a matter of policy, be honest. As an indication of the extent of fraud as above described I have the honor to report that documentary evidence is in possession of this office which has warranted the seizure of a distillery and a rectifying house, and implicated over fifty United States gaugers and store keepers. This evidence shows the issue between July 1 1874 and May 1 1875 of fraudulent spirits by implication of 20,000 packages containing probably 1,000,000 proof gallons and by the aid of false gauging to the addition of an amount of one million proof gallons. This of course is but a portion of the fraud actually committed but it of itself indicates the loss of tax to the government in ten months to an amount not less than $1,[illegible]."

Mexico Will Not Divide

WASHINGTON, Nov 12.—The Mexican Minister Mariscal pronounces as utterly unfounded the rumor of negotiations pending for the acquisition of a northern slice of Mexico, by the United States. He says no such proposition is made and the acceptance of it would be fatal to the Mexican administration. The rumor probably originated in a privately expressed opinion of the commissioner inquiring into outrages on the Texas border that such raids could be stopped only by a change of boundary, but said opinion was never embodied in writing.

The Vice President's Condition

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—When the Vice President awoke this morning he said he felt better and now wants to read the newspapers. Dr Baxter has now more confidence than ever that he will recover and be out again in a week or ten days.

Vice President Wilson to-night is able to take a more nourishing diet. At 8 o'clock he was sleeping quietly. His pulse was regular and his condition generally comfortable.

WASHINGTON, Nov 12.—The Vice President has rested quietly during the day. He suffers no pain, is cheerful and Dr Baxter says he is rapidly convalescing.

President Wilson Better.

WASHINGTON, Nov 12.—At midnight Vice President Wilson was more comfortable than any time since his illness and Dr Baxter thinks in a week he will be able to go to Massachusetts.

Consuls Recognized

The President recognized the following consuls: Albert Link of Hungary at Chicago. Ernst Von Baumback of Hungary at Milwaukee.

Formally Presented

Baron Blanc, newly appointed minister to Italy, was presented to the President by the Secretary of State with the usual formalities.

Gauger Appointed

WASHINGTON, Nov 12.—Thos. H. White has been appointed gauger for the [illegible].

Not for Oregon Yet—Appointments

WASHINGTON, Nov 12.—The President has appointed Heron [illegible] U. S. marshal for district of Missouri.

Save the Timber—Public Land

Commissioner Burdett of the general land office will in his forthcoming report strongly recommend that all timber land offered by the government be appraised and thrown open to purchaser at not less than their appraised value. He is of opinion that unless they are thus placed under private guardianship the fine forests of the country will soon be wantonly exhausted by lumber companies and speculators who are now stripping the land under cover of dummy pre-emption claims or without any pretense of accordance with law while the government derives no revenue from its property and the country sustains almost irreparable damage from the sweeping denudation of large regions of its watersheds. He will also recommend the practice of extending the system of rectangular surveys over immense bodies of worthless land west of the [illegible] meridian and suggest that only such tracts be minutely surveyed as have any attractions for settlers. He will also recommend that provision be made for connecting the land office surveys with important points established by geological surveys of the Territories and that the monuments at the section corners etc. be constructed in a more lasting manner. The recommendation of his predecessor that the pre-emption laws be abolished and the homestead system be made the only method of acquiring agricultural lands is repeated and earnestly urged upon the attention of Congress.

The Note of the Vatican to Spain

LONDON, Nov 11.—The note of the Vatican in reply to that of Spain treats the Spanish question [illegible] principal [illegible] the concordat which it says must not be departed from. The Vatican does not desire to embarrass the new Spanish government. It particularly wishes to assist it but only by such means as would be truly efficient and which would not permit the rupture of that sacred tie which has always been the glory of Spain. Religious unity which it is now sought to banish cannot impede the development of civilization but is on the contrary its true beacon. It is the duty of the papacy to combat, not civilization which is brought forward merely as a pretext, but the corruption that is invading the hearts of the nation. In persisting upon these grounds it is asserted the papacy believes it renders great service not only to the Spanish government but to all Spain. The conduct of the papal nuncio and Vatican must be regarded from this point of view. But if Spain, moved by supreme necessity, wishes to draw up an understanding on the same principles under another form, the papacy is open to negotiation with the view of introducing an acceptable modification into the concordat. After each one has declared its views it is to be seen how far the Vatican can accept the draft of the new constitution. In conclusion the Vatican accepts the declaration of the Spanish government that it desires coming to an understanding and states that introductions to negotiations have been given to the Nuncio at Madrid.

Exciting Debate in the French Assembly

PARIS, Nov 11.—The lobbies, floor and galleries of the assembly were crowded to-day, and great excitement was manifested over the debate on the electoral bill. M. Ricard, moderate Republican, opened the discussion. He stigmatized voting by arrondissement as an attack on universal suffrage, and declared that M. Buffet having endeavored to retain the project of the Empire, now because he repudiates the majority which voted the constitution of Feb. 25 wished to re-establish the electoral system of the Empire. "We demand," continued the deputy, "the Scrutin De Liste which will preserve the alliance formed on the 25th of February."

M. Dufaure, minister of justice replied, saying that the government will not accept at the next elections all who voted for the constitution. The government will say to them "thank you for voting the constitution but we require more. Your republic is now ours. You will not have our confidence or our vote."

This declaration caused an uproar of denunciation and dissent on the Left of the chamber.

M. Gambetta said the Scrutin de Liste is the only method of uniting the energies of all. "We must no longer proclaim our disunion to Europe. The ministry opposes the Scrutin de Liste because it is afraid of universal suffrage. By the arrondissement system, men like Thiers and Dufaure will be defeated if they are against the government. Royal officials will be able to warp the suffrage."

The vote was taken by means of secret ballot and resulted in favor of the government, standing 3[illegible]7 yeas to 3[illegible] nays. The government did not make the matter a cabinet question.

Herzegovina Divided.

LONDON, Nov 12.—The Porte has ordered the districts of Trebigne, Biliatz and [illegible] to be detached from Herzegovina and organized as a separate department, which will be placed under an Armenian Greek governor.

Cardinal McCloskey at the Catholic University.

DUBLIN, Nov 12.—Cardinal McCloskey assisted at the commencement of the Catholic University to-day. He was presented with an address to which he replied that the establishment of the Catholic University here was an example for America and all other countries.

Von Arnim

LONDON, Nov 13—5:10 A. M.—The Times Berlin special says that the criminal court ordered at the instance of the public prosecutor the arraignment of the author of the recent pamphlet, with documents which convicted Von Arnim on a charge of insulting the Emperor and libelling Bismarck and the foreign office. It is believed Arnim or some one in his confidence is author of the offense which is punishable with many years imprisonment. Arnim while at Nevry had asked leave of the court to remain longer abroad on account of bad health before imprisonment but before the court answered his appeal the pamphlet appeared.

Arrival of Cardinal McCloskey.

STARTLING STORY

A FORMER VICTORIAN RUNNING NAKED AND WILD ON THE MAINLAND

Following is an extract from a private letter received from Clinton on Saturday. The person alluded to was an axman in the employ of the C. P. R. survey party of 1871 and suddenly went mad while on Thompson river, and plunged into the woods. From the extract there would seem to be no doubt that he is still living in a state of wildness.

You may perhaps remember Martin, a German who had a store on Kanaka road, Victoria. He left a C. P. R. survey party and was occasionally seen for that season on the mountains. Last winter in the coldest time he was also seen by Indians after he had crossed the Thompson river on the ice. It is wonderful how he managed to exist during the intense cold. A few days ago he came to the sheep run of Peter Frazer on Stump Lake between Kamloops and Nicola. He carries his rifle which is very rusty. He had as clothing a strip of what appeared to be a piece of old trousers around his neck and not another rag or hat. His hair is gray and matted and hangs down on his shoulders and his body has become thickly covered with hair like an animal of the gorilla species. He asked the shepherd for something to eat and he gave him the remnants of his dinner. The shepherd asked him many questions but received no answer, the wild man appearing to be lost. After he had finished eating he said "That is the first bread I have eaten in five years." While eating he stood leaning on his rifle. The shepherd offered him clothes but he seemed unconscious of anything said and walked away. He is carrying his rifle on his right shoulder all the time. He carries it in his hand and walks slowly and erect. The reason he has not been seen more frequently is that he keeps to the high benches and does not appear to want to leave them. He did go towards Nicola valley. When he last took to the woods he got into the mountains at the back of Cornwall's and was frequently seen there but would run away and hide. It seems impossible to live without freezing with the mercury at 30 deg. below zero and the inference is that the blood of the insane has a cold resisting power much greater than that of sane people.—Victoria Colonist Nov 9th.

Further and Later!

THE SEARCH FOR BODIES!

FOUR BODIES FOUND!

Statement of Capt. Sawyer, of the Ship which Collided with the Pacific!

But Little Hope of Finding More Survivors!

PORT TOWNSEND, Nov 12.—When near Waddah island, [illegible] Neah bay, the Wolcott picked up the body of a man with a life preserver on. The body was taken aboard and from a letter from his sister found in one of his pockets he was supposed to be a Welchman from the town of Rhyl in the North of Wales named Robt. Jones. O'Hanley afterwards recognized the body as one of the under stewards of the Pacific.

At Neah bay Lieut. Harwood commander of the cutter went on shore and requested the Indian agent there Mr Huntington to lend his aid in prosecuting the search which the agent willingly agreed to do. He started a number of trustworthy Indians down the coast south from Cape Flattery to pick up white men's bodies or any others and bring them to the agency. These Indians searched the shore for twenty miles below the cape and returned two days afterward reporting no signs of a wreck along the shore in that direction. The agent also furnished Lieutenant Harwood with a canoe and crew of Indians which was taken on board the cutter to prosecute the search on the north shore of the straits in places which the steamer or her boats could not reach. The rescued man was left in charge of Mr Huntington and also the body which later considering the circumstances it was thought best to bury and write to the friends of the deceased in Wales. The steamer Gussie Telfair arrived at Neah Bay on Tuesday morning and joined in the search. She picked up three bodies, one of a woman who was recognized to be Mrs Wm Lawson and two men, one of which was a Mr Vining of Puyallup and the other was supposed to be a fireman of the Pacific. Picked up two trunks, one of them, from the contents was found to belong to Mrs Lawson, as it was filled with women's and children's clothing. On the outside of it was a leather tag marked Mr. W. Lawson, bank of British North America, San Francisco. The other trunk belonged to the horse tamers, Rockwell & Hurlburt, who were known to have taken passage in the unfortunate vessel.

PORT TOWNSEND, Nov 12.—All day Tuesday a terrific storm raged and it was impossible to go outside of the Cape so all the labor of the two steamers was devoted to searching the north and south shores of the Straits with only the results above indicated. On Wednesday the weather moderated and the commander of the Wolcott determined to search the shore of Vancouver Island as far north as Barclay Sound, 35 miles from Cape Flattery. At about the same time the steamer Telfair started in her search to the southward. During the passage along the Vancouver shore all the Indians seen were communicated with but farther than the fact that some light timbers, deck buckets and boxes had been found nothing was ascertained. Steaming up Barclay Sound, the first Indian village was hailed, and a canoe came off containing a white man, who came aboard and introduced himself as the first mate of the ship Orpheus. He stated that he had been run into the Thursday night previous by a steamer, and was wrecked on the following Saturday morning on an island near by Copper Island. The captain and crew had got ashore safely and were encamped further up. Proceeding in the direction indicated, another canoe approached in which was Captain Sawyer of the ship Orpheus. He gave the following account of the disaster. On Thursday evening he was approaching the Cape, and was, by his reckoning, about twenty miles off, with a fresh southeast breeze steering about northwest before the wind. His man at the wheel first saw the steamer's headlight off the port bow and then immediately after straight ahead. He could see neither of her side lights and could not make out which direction she was coming. He put his helm astarboard and turned his ship's head off shore. The light came nearer and he continued to starboard his helm until his vessel had turned around, his sails were flat aback and his ship hove to. The steamer, by this time had got very near him and blew one whistle and in less than half a minute after her bows struck his ship a glancing blow just abaft the fore chains crushing in the rail and breaking his planking down to near the copper. She surged alongside of her straining and grating along his starboard side carrying away all his starboard braces and rigging on that side and also his foretopmast and topgallant mast. Capt Sawyer states he hailed the steamer as she surged past and called to them to lay by him, and send him a boat as he then supposed his ship to be in a sinking condition but no one answered his hail neither did he see any one on her deck. She drifted or steamed away, he was not certain which, and he afterwards saw a flash light which he took for a signal at that time—they had heard his hail and would lay by him. He saw her no more, and his ship at that time demanded all his attention. He lay to the remainder of that night and nearly all day Friday repairing his rigging and that afternoon got under way and again made sail for the land, allowing for two knots northerly set off the current for his position, from which he had first hove to. Soon after dark he made a light which he took for Cape Flattery not knowing that there was a light on the coast further north, nor did his latest sailing make note of any. He allowed five miles clearance for Duncan rock and considered himself safe after entering the straits of Fuca when about 5 o'clock Saturday morning his ship scraped over a rock and immediately after struck her bow on a rock, stuck fast and filled. The light he mistook for Flattery is on Cape Beale, the entrance of Barclay Sound, [illegible] north of the former. How the ship escaped dangers passed before she struck is a mystery to all who have examined the admiralty chart of Barclay Sound. The ship will prove a total loss. Capt Sawyer got all the valuables he could out of her and encamped on the shore with his wife and crew in tents made of her sails. He had hired a canoe from the Indians and started his mate to Victoria for help, but the weather was so bad that the Indians would not venture out on the voyage so they were found when the Wolcott arrived. Lieut. Harwood took them aboard his vessel with the most valuable portion of the goods saved, leaving the first mate of the Orpheus in charge of the wreck until her owners could be consulted. All were landed safely at Port Townsend on Friday morning. Nothing was heard of or seen in Barclay Sound of anything pertaining to the unfortunate Pacific. So ends the sad story of the loss of a steamer with only two lives saved and four bodies recovered, and a fine ship wrecked, forming in the combination one of the most fatal and only catastrophes occurring in this part of the Pacific coast. Too much praise cannot be given to Capt. Harwood and the other officers and crew of the revenue cutter Wolcott for their energy and activity shown on the occasion and also to Peter Thompson, pilot, who volunteered his services as he was well acquainted with the shores of Vancouver Island and the surroundings of the Straits of Fuca, and also to Mr Huntington, the Indian agent at Neah bay reservation, and in fact all with whom we came in contact.

Capt Harwood and Pilot Peter Thompson went to the wreck of the Orpheus and examined her carefully. They say that the ship was undoubtedly struck by the steamer just abaft the forward rigging.

A phrenological lecturer in Albany last week felt the heads of several young people and paired them off just for fun. But we hear it rumored that one pair are going to make the joke stick.

The Figura was bound from Burrard Inlet to Callao with a cargo of lumber. The cause of the abandonment is not given in the telegram received.

Biedman Estate Case

This morning Judge Dwinelle ordered Henry F. Williams to pay the sum of $110,331.12 into the hands of the clerk of his court, and allowed him 10 days in which to obey the order. This is another stage of the famous Biedman estate case in which a decision was rendered by Judge Dwinelle in June last that Williams was owing the estate $110,331.12, and ordered him to pay that amount to the register of the court. Williams was trustee of the estate in October 1870. He brought suit against John Conroy and others, heirs of Biedman, for the purpose of being discharged from his trust and having a successor appointed pending the disposition of the case. Two new trustees were appointed to whom he surrendered mortgage securities amounting to $88,000 which was all he accounted for of the proceeds of the estate. The question was whether he had surrendered everything over and above reasonable compensation for his services.

SATURDAY MORNING NOV 13 1875

A NEW ASPECT OF THE PACIFIC'S CASE

The report of the captain and crew of the Orpheus puts a new face on the circumstances of the wreck of the Pacific. Instead of being struck by the sailing vessel, it seems the steamer ran into the sailer, and did such damage as caused the captain of the latter to suppose his ship would go to the bottom at once. But how came the Pacific to break amidships having come on the other vessel bows to? The explanation must be that she was rotten and ready to fall to pieces before, which is likely to be the case with a vessel built twenty four years ago. They says she had been overhauled from keel to deck only a few years since and made perfectly staunch. That however, either means that she was built anew from the ground up—made into an entirely new ship—which is not likely, or else it means that all partially decayed, or decaying timbers were replaced with new pieces. Such an overhauling would no doubt, make a vessel quite safe for a short time, but every one acquainted with such matters knows that old timbers which appear sound and solid to day may be altogether decayed in a few months. It is also known that frequently old timbers which appear quite firm under the ordinary tests are nevertheless found brittle and lifeless under lateral strain. So the timbers originally put into the Pacific and left in her at the time of her overhauling a few years ago being then apparently sound, may have been rotten and brittle last week. At all events there appears no rational theory to account for the wrecking of both vessels, in the way it apperrs to have happened except on the assumption that the one which ran into the other was ready to break up with any hard usage.

The Orpheus was built by Rice & Mitchell at Chelsea Massachusetts in 1856—five years after the Pacific, but for some time past if we are correctly informed has been hailing from San Francisco. She was a vessel of 1067 tons burthen, drawing twenty feet of water, and had been, if she was not at the time of her wreck, out of rate. So it is not unlikely that she, as well as the Pacific was better suited to the boneyard than the high seas.

RECKLESS SEAMANSHIP

The prosecution of the owners of the steamship City of Waco, which burned on the Gulf of Mexico a few days ago, is a step in the right direction, if the report is correct that she was carrying a large amount of coal oil. The reckless periling of the lives of passengers by the owners and masters of ships should be stopped by some means, and that can not be done except by visiting upon them the penalties of violating the law. Events of the last few days have set the public on this coast to thinking on the subject of the provisions for safety of passengers at sea and the series of disasters on the East coast has aroused attention there. Whether it will cause the ax to be laid at the root of the tree, we venture no prediction, but if it should there will be other owners besides those of the Waco called upon to answer. There is scarcely room to doubt that one half the people who perish in marine disasters are sacrificed through recklessness of owners or of masters. Less than a month since one of the large steamers plying between England and America sailed for New York in a condition that made it impossible to handle her when the sea was at all rough. She had been out but forty eight hours till everything on board that could be destroyed by water shipped in plunging through the seas, was ruined and at last the captain was compelled by a mutiny of his crew, who refused to go with their eyes open into the jaws of death and by the entreaties of the passengers, to turn about and go back to Queenstown. Had it been possible for the captain to manage his crew the probabilities are that the steamer crew and passengers would have gone to the bottom of the Atlantic.

Such is the reckless business enterprise and the reckless seamanship of masters. Everybody observes the fact, and condemns it. And yet the same disregard of human life prevails and grows only more reckless. There may be a lack of legislation to meet the case, or the trouble may be with the manner in which the laws are executed but it is certain that heroic treatment of some sort is greatly needed.

THE ATTEMPT TO MURDER FATHER BRABANT

A Victoria telegram in this paper says that Father Brabant the Missionary to the Indians on the west coast of Vancouver Island who was shot by an Indian chief is recovering. It was feared he would be dead before the steamer which went to his relief could reach him, as the first reports of the case seemed to leave little hope of his recovery. Now that he is in a secure place, surrounded with all that can be of service to him in his misfortune, and apparently in a fair way to be on his feet again in due time, it is too much to expect that any one will read the letters sent by the wounded priest to Bishop Seghers at the time of the affair. The shooting took place at Barclay Sound, where the priest was devoting himself generally to an effort to christianize and civilize a tribe or a band of savages. We publish the letters, as the best explanation of the attack on Father Brabant. They were carried around to Victoria by Indians from a Hasquoit village in a canoe and are as follows

1st November 187[illegible]

My Lord—Sad news. I am shot in the right hand and in the back. Please send a priest at once. I may get well if a doctor comes at once to extract the shot. A. BRABANT.

My Lord—Matlahow the chief of the Hasquoit has shot me a double shot.

On the back of this note are the words the chief has run away.

My Lord—I am dying. I am shot in the right hand and back by Matlahow the Hasquoit chief. I have given no reason. Adieu. Pray for me. A. BRABANT.

My Lord—Inflammation is setting in in my right hand. The Indians are very kind. The whole tribe is crying day and night. At least three are taking care of me. Do not blame them. Praise for their kindness and may another priest be soon here to take my place as the [illegible] of your Lordship [illegible] servant. A. BRABANT.

These letters were written by the wounded priest with his left hand, the right being disabled.

The cause of this shooting was the intercession of the priest to prevent Matlahow from slaying a neighboring band of Indians for communicating smallpox to his band from which Matlahow's wife sister and two children had died.

Father Brabant is, as his name suggests a native of Belgium but has been for many years connected with the diocese of Victoria, and was sent last April to Barclay Sound to establish a mission among the Indians there.

THE SHIP BUILDING COMPANY

The ship building company whose articles of incorporation were published in the OREGONIAN of yesterday morning, proposes to open up an industry in Oregon, the importance of which can not be too highly appreciated. There is no country in which all the conditions requisite for successful ship building are presented to better advantage than in this State. In the matter of suitable timber which is the first consideration, our resources can not be excelled, and in all minor matters we are quite as well situated as the most favorable ports of the Atlantic coast. The best ship yard on the New England coast ought to have its rival at Portland.

The gentlemen who now conclude to engage in this needed enterprise are among our first and most substantial citizens, and possessed of ample means to carry the undertaking to perfect success. We trust this is the beginning of a branch of industry in which Oregon will ere long take a leading position.

An ex-soldier writes us that he does not endorse the proceedings of the meeting of ex soldiers concerning the appointment of U S Marshal to fill the vacancy that has not yet occurred, and that he believes two thirds, at least of all the other ex soldiers in the State are of his way of thinking. We should not wonder if he is right in the general proposition. He also says he could, if necessary procure the signatures of a majority of the ex soldiers of his acquaintance to a protest against the accomplishment of the object for which the meeting was called in which also we are rather inclined to acquiesce.

"ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?"

CHICO, March 1 187[illegible]

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN. In an experience of three years with the Averill Chemical Paint more than one half the jobs have chalked, peeled [illegible] notwithstanding the paint was warranted to do neither and out of sixteen failures the California Chemical Paint Company have refused to furnish paint to repaint but six of them. I refer to the following houses that have cracked, peeled and chalked off in this place [illegible] M D, Thomas Darrough, [illegible] F H Farmer, Frank Oldham, J H [illegible] J Bill, D Trickly, G Woodward, Thomas Rea, J Bill, D [illegible] Whitney, William Wilson, J M Finfast, J B Hitch [illegible] J A Baxter, Music Hall, Catholic Church, and I might name many more.

J B RHINEHART Painter

23 Post St SAN FRANCISCO Sept 11 1874

To Pacific Chemical Paint Company—Gents: I had my house in Oakland painted with your paint. It was warranted to be good and satisfactory in every respect. I was obliged to have the third coat put on to make it look as it had been really painted and even then I think one good coat of Lead Paint would have given the house a better appearance. I think you ought to make up to me the loss I sustained besides the annoyance I felt in knowing that an inferior article had been put on when a No 1 article had been promised. Hoping to hear from you soon on the subject I remain

Yours resp'y DR HENRY KNOX

Dentist 23 Post street San Francisco

GILROY Sept 4 1875

To whom it may concern. Seeing in various papers that the California Chemical Paint Company continue to deceive people by saying that the Averill paint will neither peel crack nor chalk off I deem it my duty to say that my house painted with the above named paint in the fall of 1873 failed in less than eighteen months after being painted by peeling cracking and chalking off in the worst manner imaginable. I also observe that the company have my name in their printed matter as reference; this was done without my knowledge or consent.

E J BRYANT

GILROY March 1875

To whom it may concern. My house painted with the Averill Chemical Paint in June 1874 failed in a little over one year after being painted by chalking peeling washing and changing color some light color some dark. The California Chemical Paint Company are knowing to this and yet continue to deceive the public by saying that the Averill Paint will not peel crack or chalk.

THOMAS DARROUGH

GILROY Sept 4 1875

To whom it may concern. My house painted with the Averill Chemical Paint manufactured by the California Chemical Paint Company of San Francisco about two years ago failed in less than one year after it was painted by chalking off and changing color and I had a portion of it repainted.

J B TRICKLY

GILROY Sept. 4 1875

To whom it may concern. I had my fence painted in the fall of 1873 with the Averill Chemical Paint which was represented not to chalk, peel or crack off but it chalked off in three months after it was painted.

Then Use the "Rubber Paint,"

The Best Paint in the World.

SAN JOSE Cal March 29 1875

Pacific Rubber Paint Company San Francisco—Gentlemen: I have used and sold the Rubber Paint in this city during the last four years. We have about one hundred buildings painted with the Rubber Paint. Among the prominent ones are the State Normal School, Gates Institute, City Market, the residence of Josiah Belden, J W Hinds, President Gold Note Bank, J R Arguello Santa Clara etc. It has never failed to give satisfaction with a test of from one to four years, so that its durability has been well tested. My sales last year were nearly five thousand gallons.

Truly yours AMASA EATON

OAKLAND Cal March 29 1875

Pacific Rubber Paint Company—Gents: My residence painted with the Rubber Paint about eight months ago so far has proved all you claim for it. It is as bright and beautiful as when finished.

Yours, etc., WALLACE EVERSON

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22 1875

Pacific Rubber Paint Company—Gentlemen: I have used your Rubber Paint on my yacht thus far the action of the water has had no effect upon it. So far as my experience goes the Rubber Paint is the best paint ever used for painting vessels, especially in salt water. It adheres firmly to the wood, does not peel and retains its gloss.

CAPT EDWIN MOODY

ALVARADO Cal June 10 1875

Pacific Rubber Paint Company—Gents: We the undersigned interested parties in the Odd Fellows' Hall of this place feel it a duty as well as a pleasure to say to you that we are highly pleased not only with the appearance of the Rubber Paint on our hall but think it at least twenty per cent cheaper than any paint we could have used and we also recommend it to all as superior to any other paint as regards its covering and spreading qualities.

SALEM Oregon July 9 1875

Pacific Rubber Paint Company—Gents: After a careful and accurate test gallon for gallon of Atlantic Lead and Linseed Oil and the Rubber Paint of your manufacture and the Averill Chemical Paint I find the Rubber Paint to cover more surface—two coat work—to the gallon than Lead and Oil Paint, and twenty per cent more than the Averill Chemical Paint.

CITY.

INCENDIARISM.—A gentleman who arrived in the city last evening from Forest Prairie informs us that the barn of Mr George Applan who resides about two and a half miles above Champoeg was totally destroyed by fire on Thursday afternoon. The circumstances connected with the fire are such as to leave no doubt in the world but what it was the result of incendiarism. About 2 o clock on Thursday afternoon Mr Applan and his son observed a man approaching the house. Both barn and house stood near the road and father and son supposed of course that the person was coming to the latter and no further notice was taken of the man. He did not come past the house and on looking soon after in the direction of the barn the father and son were astonished beyond measure on perceiving smoke and flames issuing from the building. They ran to the burning building with all haste, but found that the flames had gained such rapid headway that their progress could not be stayed. Just before reaching the barn Mr. Applan and son saw the same man who but a short time previous was coming up the road, run out from the building and dart into the brush, which stood but a few yards distant. The brush was thick, and it was useless to pursue the incendiary. In a very short time the barn was reduced to ashes and all it contained. A new and valuable threshing machine and a large quantity of hay were also destroyed. Mr Applan estimates his loss at about $1,800. There was no insurance on the building or its contents. Mr A. seems to be unfortunate in the way of fires as several years ago he had a large barn destroyed and sustained a loss of $5 000. He has no idea who the incendiary is.

PASSENGERS.—The steamer Ajax sailed hence for San Francisco yesterday afternoon. The following passengers took their departure: J H Fairchild, wife and daughter Miss Nellie Coolidge, Miss Eva Coolidge Judge I D Sawyer, S G Reed and wife, H Rees Robert Koshy, W. R. Craven, M H Shepard, A S Rosenbaum, R. J Harrison Mrs C P Crandall, Edward Crandall Harry Crandall Geo H. W., Geo Duplain, J P Rowell R D Hume, H. L. Dodge, M. Gardner, S L Stone N Levy, Jos N Teal Jr., Jos Teal Geo Amberg and daughter, N. Frobman Ben Teal, W. F. Jones, L. Grastine, S S Snell David Dalgleish, J. H. B. Armstrong, Miss Alice Dorner Miss Nellie Connors, W S Cameron, R. Snider, M. J. Mahoney, Wm Kress, Mrs. A. M. Martin and infant, M C Russell, P. C. Stout, Lloyd Russell, Isaac Owen, wife and three children Miss Nellie Owen, H. E. Owen, and son Louis Saragn, wife son and daughter, Mrs. Bixby and two children, J B Richards, C A Booth, Abner Allen, Miss Sarah McNeeley, Mrs Geo Cook Miss Mary Batterton, Ida F Huber Miss Dwyer, T. C. Huber, C Huber, C A Huber M. H. Huber, Geo. Dent, wife and child, H Sohns, Wells, Fargo & Co's messenger, and 50 in the steerage.

PARDONED.—C. H Cameron, who was convicted of embezzlement at the present term of the State circuit court, and sentenced by Judge Shattuck to four years confinement in the penitentiary, was pardoned yesterday by Gov. Grover. In custody of Sheriff Jeffery, Cameron was taken to Salem yesterday morning. A petition asking for his pardon had been circulated in this city for several days, which petition together with the names of the signers, was forwarded to Gov Grover. On reaching the depot, the sheriff and his [illegible] drove down to the Governor's office, and in a few minutes Cameron was a free man. He returned to the city last evening on the train.

GRAND OPERA TROUPE.—Mr F F. Morse, [illegible] manager of the "Marston and Bianchi" opera troupe, has just returned from Victoria and the towns on the sound. We understand he closed a contract with the owner of the theatre in Victoria to give four [illegible] of grand opera there and has been [illegible] ents offered him to give four representations in the towns on the Sound. If sufficient inducements are offered he will bring the troupe here and give the same operas that will be given in Victoria. Quite a number of prominent citizens have signed the subscription list, and no doubt the desired amount will soon be subscribed.

LOSS SUSTAINED.—Messrs. Welch & Morgan, whose [illegible] shop caught fire yesterday morning, were insured for $5,000 in the following companies: , Liverpool, London & Globe $3,000; Home Mutual, $2 000. As yet the loss sustained has not been estimated, but will be fully covered by insurance. The building, which is a one-story brick, belongs to Mr Lewis Love, and is we understand, not insured. The building is probably damaged to the extent of $300. In a few days the losses will be adjusted by the insurance companies.

S. S. CONCERT.—A Sunday school concert will be held at the Hall street Methodist church, on the corner of Sixth and Hall streets, on next Sunday afternoon, at 2½ o'clock. A splendid programme has been prepared. Judge R S Greene of Washington Territory, and other eminent speakers are expected to be present and take part in the exercises. A cordial invitation is extended to all. Admission free.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.—On Wednesday the wife of Wm. Smith, daughter of S. H. Smith, living near Hillsboro, took a dose of strychnine, from the effects of which she soon died. It is stated that the woman was laboring under temporary insanity at the time. Domestic trouble is said to have had much to do in urging her to commit the rash, suicidal act. D [illegible] had been married about five years.

Prayer meeting at 6 30 P M. Rev D J Pierce will preach at the Livermore school house East Portland at 4 o'clock P M.

A GOLDEN WEDDING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Permit me to say that Miss Mary Moorhead and I entered into a solemn covenant, that we would become half and half with each other during life, and on the first day of November 1825 we had that covenant ratified. We have been endeavoring from that time up to the first day of November 1875 which completed our half century to bear each others burdens and trials, the best we knew how and in view of this fact neither of us were ever necessitated to apply for a divorce. Between the two dates above named we stood at the head of a family of fourteen children out of which number six have gone to eternity before us. There was only four of them present to participate in our golden dinner which was a splendid one. The later date finds me in my 73d year and my other half in her 70th year we are still traveling down the lane of mortality to the land of silence without any hope or even a desire to see the year of our Lord 1925 but by grace through faith ere long we expect to make a safe landing upon that eternal shore to range the fields that shine eternally fair.

THE OTHER SIDE.

PORTLAND, Nov 12 1875

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

There was a statement in this morning's issue of your paper about a "Gathering of Soldiers" which is calculated to convey a false impression of the action had by a meeting of honorably discharged soldiers held at Good Templars Hall Thursday evening. It is true that a gentleman (Mr Burnell) arose at the commencement of proceedings and inquired the object but when you state that there was a good deal of dissatisfaction at the conduct of those who had got up the meeting, you make a mistake, as there was none. So far as we know, there was but one man in the room who did not vote for a resolution indorsing Mr Chas DuBois for the office of marshal in case a vacancy should occur and that was Mr Burnell whose dissatisfaction was not sufficiently strong at the time to cause him to vote in the negative.

Yours respectfully
A A FRANKLIN,
Chairman of the Meeting

THE COURTS.

U S CIRCUIT COURT—SAWYER, DEADY JJ

Catharine Burk vs Fred k Adams, demurrer to complaint sustained, and complainant has till next rule day to amend.

Adjourned till Monday next.

Diaries for 1876—J K Gill & Co have just received a splendid assortment.

By polite attention and promptness in filling orders, Fishel & Roberts have gained largely in their list of patrons who deal with the house knowing that all is as promised.

They are busy at Beck & Waldron's filling orders received during the past few days. The large and varied stock and low prices are the primary cause of the great rush to this house. Recollect, northwest corner of Front and Washington streets.

Malarkey is fattening up Thanksgiving turkeys and keeps a full line of poultry, fish, etc, for the public good.

Little Allie has a new K G S S song for Sunday evening.

Smelt tom cod fresh herring crabs oysters any amount of these delicacies at Mendenhall & Magoon's, Union Fish Market Washington street near Second.

Remember Dr. Wood cures pain immediately at the Exchange.

The Elmwood collar for appearance and fit is unsurpassed. All first class furnishing stores have them for sale.

CAUSES AND CURES OF CRIME.

A sermon preached November 7 1875 by Rev D J Pierce pastor of the First Baptist Church Portland and asked for publication by a vote of the congregation.

"The fathers eat sour grapes and the children's teeth are set on edge."—Ez xviii 2.

"Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it."—Prov xxii 6.

"He who converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death and shall hide a multitude of sins."—James v 19 20.

What causes crime and what shall be done about it is the simple question which we wish to solve. With many there seems to be a grave doubt about the right of interference with a person's freedom for the good of himself or others. All the world is anxious for liberty without asking the important question whether the people are prepared to make it a blessing or a curse. Much as I emphasize independence in religion and politics I am yet compelled to allow that the despotisms of Asia and Europe and the reigns of the mediæval church were often the most salutary and providential checks to wicked or fanatical passions which, if unchecked would have blasted all life like the simoom of the desert. And it is possible that we may sometimes see how evil is allowed to mingle with the good even at the sacred shrine of a religious faith in order to check its own course and the sooner be worked free from the human spirit. But if we allow the right of government to deprive a person of his liberties for punishment of his crimes, why may it not also be allowed to prevent such crimes as it foresees will certainly occur by taking hold of the individual freedom and giving needed training?

The training of the young is placed in the hands of their parents by natural laws too sacred to be lightly set aside. But if that training be worse than none a positive preparation for crime, is a not the parent forfeit his rights? Is not society called upon to supply to some extent necessary for its own preservation that which is refused by the natural guardian? The words of Edward Mansfield L L D are in point here:

"Society has power to prevent crime. It has power to take away temptation to reward virtue over outrage industry and to restrain vice. It has power to defend the individual against social wrongs and temptations which impair his peace and prosperity quite as much as to embody armies and defend property."

"Has society a right to allow ignorance and intemperance when they cause crime when in fact they are the great causes of crime?" (Com Ed Rep 1872 p 567.)

But if we concede the right of society to prevent crime we at once desire to know its causes.

We have chosen three texts which suggest three most fruitful causes of crime in different stages of life.

While I do not fully accept the sentiment of an old adv of my acquaintance that instead of saying so much about being born again we ought to try to have people born right the first time, yet I believe that many a Christian will be greatly surprised at the catalogue of sins recorded against him at the judgment seat and many men who have well disguised their true character on earth will tremble to find all things naked and open before Him with whom we have to do. Science has not abated a jot of the Mosaic representation of God as visiting the sins of the fathers upon the children of the third and fourth generation and a wholesome emphasis of the terrible facts that the drunkard and the libertine and the vagrant are planting seeds in a fruitful soil which will bring forth according to its kind a terribly sure harvest in the garner of destruction would form a good preventive of much crime. Traits of wickedness are fruitful and manifold in their results and he who passes for an honorable man in society may yet be confronted with specimens of hideous deformities of character from his secret habits hidden from human eye, rising like goblins to haunt him in his woe.

If But parents do not discharge their duty to their children. In this fair land few are the unfortunates whose progeny cannot attain a fair education and a good moral character with the proper home training. The public school, the friend of the poor reaches out its hand to all. The mission school plants seeds of morality wherever all would. Still here as elsewhere children run in the streets and become adepts in evil practices being either trained to wickedness by inhuman parents, or neglected in mistaken indulgence till the seeds of evil are too deeply rooted for eradication.

Ignorance is the mother of crime—I have received some good points from the report of commissioner of education 1872 and also from the report of international prison congress 1873. In the latter a summary of the reports of different countries concerning the chief causes of crime, is given as follows:

Austria—A dislike to work and impatience of restraint poverty.

France—Insufficient moral education.

Baden—Thirst for pleasure with reference to I Jn II 16.

Netherlands—Ignorance drunkenness.

Norway—Laziness drunkenness bad society.

The causes of juvenile crime grow out of those of prison crimes. The parents teach wickedness and breed it the children multiply it. Illiteracy is the grand foe to virtue. Edward Mansfield LL D says: "Out of 411 133 arrest from 1867–69 in France over 9 per cent were unable to read and of 8 149 juvenile prisoners arrested from 1866–8 81 per cent were unable to read."—Rep Com Ed 72, page 588.

In England out of 1 7 2?8 arrests 34 per cent were totally ignorant. In Switzerland 83 per cent of all criminals and one third of all criminals in Massachusetts for eight years past are in the same condition.

After a careful array of tables (p 590) covering two pages he says: "It appears therefore that in the Middle States the proportion of illiterate criminals is eight fold the proportion of illiterate people. In the Central West it is thirteen fold. In the West and Pacific States it is ten fold."

Thus we see in the above proportions the great fact that ignorance is one of the great causes of crime. What then is the practical result? That because 100 persons out of 10 000 have been kept total ignorant the county or municipality has seven times as many criminals as it need have and seven times as much expense and evil resulting from it.—Ibid. 59.

How comes this array of ignorance?

1 Parents are too shiftless or penurious to clothe their children too proud to ask help for the purpose and they run idle and ignorant in the street.

2 An unholy law of easy divorce makes the marriage tie insecure and thousands of children are left by parents to come up as they can and graduate in jail.

3 A false indulgence in the parent resents the wise rules of the school boards, and out of a mistaken pity keeps the children from school to grow rich in evil knowledge and bring ne [illegible]

4 An unscriptural sentiment [illegible] spares the rod from the child's back drives him out of school for small offenses in stead of driving the offense out of him by proper corporal punishment and fulfills the Solomonic proverb by spoiling the child.

5 There is no efficient effort for compelling attendance at school or salutary fear of more rigorous confinement in an industrial reform school and children restless of restraint offend for the purpose of being expelled and gain coveted liberty under the garb of punishment. I was once expelled from school this way myself and felt real pride in my liberty simply because for three years previous my teachers had given me my own way and it was only by the subsequent strict earnest yet loving influence of a godly school mistress that I was saved from a useless life.

6 The presence of cheap labor in the West and the rapidly gained fortunes of many citizens afford leisure for boys who unless compelled to spend it in school become leaders in vice. Chinese labor should be a blessing to the West by making it possible for men of moderate means to give their children time for education but when they are unrestrained it proves a curse.

7 A spirit of independence caught from the very genius of our institutions a glorious spirit too but perverted by precocious youth.

We have no boys. They are all masters or young men and very soon learn that part of the declaration of independence pertaining to the inalienable rights of all.

The boy ten years old or even under seeks to imitate the young man whom he sees and his life street life brings him often into contact with fast young men he early learns to affect an air of supreme disgust for all external restraints to walk with a blustering swagger [illegible] his hat [illegible] puff his cigar or paper roll with the utmost self possession. It is unmanly to obey the old [illegible] (the [illegible]) at home. Hence all kinds of subterfuges are used to get upon the street and once there there are plenty of hoodlums in the more advanced degrees to lead him on.

I truly believe that this last element is the most powerful of all in producing juvenile criminals and yet it is when properly restrained the best element of American character. It needs guidance not suppression.

Well what shall we do about it? This is no far fetched question but as of old a crouching lion at our very doors. San Francisco New York and Chicago have hoodlums. Let them see to it! Portland has hoodlums! She must take care of them. The tide has already set in. A company of boys has went down last year by the [illegible] church to fight and nearly killed one of their number. Her such as leer about our basement windows whenever we have an evening entertainment and are found Sunday afternoons playing ball near the [illegible] or beating dogs about the street or by the lamppost gazing at evening church goers deserve no better name however their parents may dislike to hear it and are well started on the road to State's prison. An older company further advanced are seen hanging about saloons and houses of prostitution to feast their eyes upon the lustful sights presented by other members of society graduated from their ranks. Portland is full of the advance [illegible] and she keeps them ever on exhibition day and night and sets up [illegible] attractive in the sight [illegible] her best citizens wink at the regular weekly trampling of a city law under foot and will not even command the respect of them to the law. Do you expect the element will ever grow less? [illegible] fostered [illegible] I am [illegible] at this point [illegible] the only wise course at present but also the terrible fact is more fearfully alarming.

What are the remedies? 1 Example is better than precept. Let us be law abiding citizens and seek to have the law honored. If it be a bad one let it be enforced and prove its [illegible]. If it be just and good do not think to make the boys honor and obey that which others set at naught. [illegible] while I set a thrust of sight [illegible] a fine daylight. Compel [illegible] the [illegible] among the citizens and lessen the plant of the youth.

2 Compel your children to go to school. If the parent will do this good but if not let the city act for the parent. It is my belief that [illegible] fully prevent crime and I have shown that ignorance is the great cause of crime. Satan finds something still for idle hands to do. If I am right fully informed I believe our public schools dismiss [illegible]. If all scholars too much [illegible] suspension. When a scholar becomes dangerous to the school it should be cast out but [illegible] sharpen his wits and hasten his [illegible] of birch. However unpopular I may become by this opinion I stand on the word of God and on I believe on the sounded common sense. I have had more than one young man thank me for my stern yet firm corporal punishment when his teacher which has started him on a better course. Our system of expulsion places a premium upon evil.

Let wholesome punishment be calmly administered in a friendly way severe but lovingly and many a boy will be awakened to the true friendship of those he thought his enemies. There is a great deal of false reasoning upon that equal right clause of our declaration of independence as if the State were acting the tyrant in compelling education. I [illegible] all allow the right of conscription in for the salvation of the country in time of war why should not the country prevent the war by compulsory education in time of peace? "When the parent does not appreciate the advantages of education the State has a right to step in and take care of the children" says H W Beecher "If the parent sacrifices the child's intelligence, then the State is invested with a parent's right for though all parents have the liberty to do right no parent has the right to do wrong."—Beecher on Compulsory Education. Compel your children to go to school and you will save a vast influence for evil.

But there is a clause which will be incorrigible. I scarcely doubt power should be sparingly used and the ruling control should be rather merged in a strong attractiveness to draw scholars to the school. The old log house with open chinks and the king of terror armed with an ever present sceptre in the shape of a wooden parallel gram, has passed away and our school rooms are pleasant. Our state easy our teachers friends yet a public school like those of Portland should have an attractive library room free to every scholar stored with attractive books of history science travel and biography ornamented with appropriate maps and pictures and a cabinet of natural curiosities which will catch every boy's eye.

The best way to keep boys at home is to make home pleasant and the surest method of keeping scholars in school is to make it an attractive place not only for the deep student but for the curious. When these means fail try the last resort, suasion. Boys and girls who will not like such a place when properly used are dangerous characters already espousing the evil from choice.

For such as are still incorrigible I believe there should be houses of industry and reform schools but which the young hoodlum I use the word as least aggressive when expelled from school as [illegible] be [illegible] If [illegible] will not attend school [illegible] [illegible] take them [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in which they grew.

I have been much interested in the full account of one of the first reform schools ever established in Mettray France in 1838 by Count de Metz. M DuMetz [illegible] thus so enthusiastic in their work as to give up their lives to the paternal care of such unfortunates as are placed in their charge and laboring so systematically and persistently yet kindly as to cause a noted visitor (Lord Leigh) to say "there are few of us who would not learn something from a course at Mettray." The pupils are taught not only the common branches of study but also have to put out a fire to practice gymnastics swim cook wash mortgage cattle keep accounts and assist in the management of others. (Barnard on Ed 187 vol 3 p 7) "There are no walls about Mettray" said a reformed lad who had repeatedly run away from other institutions when asked why he did not do the same here. The whole idea of the school is to make inmates feel that those around them are their best friends though not indulgent to laziness evil acts or anything that ruins. At the second annual meeting the Count de Gasparin said:

"It is no longer a project but a reality acknowledged by the whole neighborhood. We have seen their hypocritical cast of countenance change to one of modest self possession testifying to an inward regeneration and a resolution to keep in the right path." Ibid p 788.

Here comes in my third text. "He that converteth a sinner from the error of his ways shall save a soul from death and hide a multitude of sins."

Preventives are good and should be multiplied but like S S temperance societies they cannot reach that class already graduated in evil action. Men are worth saving after they have fallen and it can be done. How much more the children!

Evil habits though degrading, may be overcome and evil hearts brought to the throne of truth. Reform schools have proved their usefulness and power of redemption. I shall never forget a Sunday morning scene in the Howard Mission in New York city several years ago. Children gathered from the street and the hells their voices ringing in holy song their happy acts speaking their appreciation of the work done for them.

These mission and aid schools in New York show a marked influence in preventing crime. Within ten years from their establishment, By their labors, the number of female vagrants under 15 arrested fell from 5,880 in 1862 to 348 in 1871 and of male vagrants from 2,8?? in 1859 to 994 in 1871 while the male arrests under 15 for larceny fell from 1,930 to 1 978 though the population had increased 13½ per cent. (Com Ed Oct 1872.) During these years the children's aid societies and orphan homes have transplanted 20,000 children from the hot-beds of vice to Christian country homes and receive good reports from 70 per cent. of them after three years. From the report of the International Prison Congress of 1872 p 118 we find a still greater decrease caused by reformatories in the United Kingdom of Great Britain, sinking from 13 981 commitments in 1856 to 7 622 in 1858 and 9 938 in 1870 though the large towns have greatly increased during the time. The same report gives some wonderful facts concerning the school at Mettray France which seems to have nobly earned the eulogy pronounced by the committee of the prison congress as the best reformatory institution in the world (p 265 report). It is stated that prior to the founding of Mettray 75 per cent. or three fourths, of all juvenile offenders relapsed from the correction given them but here it is not more than 5 per cent! (p 265.)

How is it done? By their personal contact with a wise good man (Mr Du Metz still lives) who loves them too well to indulge their faults and appeals first to their hearts second to the development of their physical powers third to their intellectual culture. (See page 263.) The opening address of Du Metz to his pupils is as follows: "Your godfather has answered for you before God, I answer for you to your family. Show yourself docile and you will have another friend to love you. Resist and you will be subdued." (See page 267.) And now what is the secret of reform? Simply such [illegible] to grasp the great thoughts of God around them and use the world for a better purpose than for [illegible] touch the hearts with the power of sanctified personal love and hold the child until it [illegible] its attractive power. The laws of God are after all the most natural. Love for all [illegible] and [illegible] punishment [illegible] the incorrigible. Separate the sin from the sinner love the one forever hate the other with a perfect hatred. I know not whether or not we may secure a reform school in Oregon at present.

I probably the present agitation will increase the interest felt in the subject and hasten the passage of a proper bill by the next legislature securing a State Reform school managed by moral earnest enlightened men who will do their best to reclaim the erring. But meanwhile remember the words of James and let earnest individual effort be put forth in every hut and hovel to lead the wanderers back to the public school, the mission the home. Knowing that individual labor for select cases cannot fail to leave its impress and many are reclaimed by the kind words and pleasant smiles of those never knowing the result till they find the golden sheaves in the heavenly garner.

See that richly dressed young lady stooping by the sidewalk and poking aside the filth of the street. Why is she engaged in such work as this? Let us draw near and watch her movements. See she stoops and puts her jeweled finger into the dirty mass. For shame! She is insane! But see! she has something in her fingers. She cleanses it she wipes it. Ah! it glistens. It is a jewel lost from her ornament. It is of great value and it is the gift of a friend. She has redeemed it and she is happy. She stands justified before us. What did I say? Nay they are like the once noxious tree grafted with delicious fruit whereby all the mulplying influences of evil are replaced by an ever accumulating good. Here is an instance. Margaret — of Ulster county New York was 85 years ago neglected and grew up in ignorance pauperism and crime. She and two neglected sisters have begotten six generations of criminals and paupers making a total of 623 souls! (N A Review October 187 p 521.) In one generation there were seven teen children none of whom were confined in the State prison in a single year. I estimate the value to the State if Margaret and her sisters had been saved by the earnest Christian efforts of a reform school.

O friends I am taught a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] these little ones? With faith in God and an earnest systematic effort, let us try the rather to win them to the gospel reformer Jesus Christ.

INCIDENTS OF THE DISASTER.

The following incidents connected with the loss of the steamer Pacific we collate from the Victoria papers:

Among those on board were Mrs Moote, eldest daughter of Mr McMillan, editor of the Standard. She was returning to her husband in San Francisco from a visit to her relatives here. Mr Sullivan magistrate at Cassiar going home on leave; the wife and two children of Mr Thomas Styles (Kinsman & Styles); Mrs Moote (eldest daughter of ex mayor McMillan, editor of the Standard), the wife and child of Mr William Lawson (Bank of British North America); Richard Lyons and Dennis Cain two of the discoverers of the Cassiar gold fields.

Mr Jelley fails to recollect the name of the man who was lashed with him on the pilot-house. He was a successful Cassiar miner. He took out $5,000 during the past season. By the survivor's description of the man who was on the pilot house with him he is supposed to be Jack McCormick an old Cariboo ite and lately from Cassiar.

A premature death befel the infant child of Captain Parsons. It appears that Mrs. Parsons had the child in her arms coming up from below and in the confusion a man tumbled upon it from the effects of which it was killed instantly.

A lady while in Turner's store in this city, purchasing some articles picked up a Standard extra which was thrown in. It was the first she had learned of the news and the loss of her husband. She fainted immediately on receiving the news.

Capt Parsons was on board the Prince Alfred when she was wrecked was on board the Los Angeles when she broke her shaft, purchased tickets for San Francisco by the Dakota but was unable to get away in her, sailed in the Pacific on Thursday last, and is reported lost with all his family.

Miss Palmer, whose name is mentioned as among the lost, had a presentiment of the dark shadow of approaching danger hanging over her. When she said farewell to several friends, she said she felt she would never see them again in this world, and it is said that she wrote a note to a former schoolmate in which she expressed her belief that she would never return to Victoria.

CAPITAL NOTES

"Wide Awake," under date of yesterday sends the following:

Mrs S E May is convalescing from her recent illness.

Byron Boone of the firm of Booth & Boone, grocers has been ill for several days. We learn he is recovering slowly.

River freights are lively at the present time, and competition brisk. The nobby steamer City of Salem is destined to become a favorite with Salemites.

Walter Moss has returned from Dallas, and accepted a situation on the Daily Statesman. He does not seem very much elated over Polk county prospects.

For the information of Portland business men we would state that mails leave daily for Dallas and Silverton, and on Wednesdays and Saturdays for Wheatland leaving the Salem P O about 7 o'clock P M and arriving at 10 A M.

We are pleased to announce the safe arrival home this morning, of Prof Crawford and lady from an extended tour in the Eastern States. The Willamette University turned out almost en masse to welcome them on their arrival at the depot.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

L. Samuel is preparing for the issue of "Samuel's Directory" for 1876. He has new ideas for the next number, which will improve it greatly.

Pay Joe Kohn a visit and have him show you that elegant stock of clothing and furnishing goods. He can supply you, there is no doubt about it.

It would be difficult to imagine anything in furnishing and fancy goods that they do not keep at Ackerman's dollar store. We looked through the store yesterday and found the shelves and counters literally packed with goods and the employees busy as bees filling orders. The stock of goods for the holidays is simply immense. Go and surprise yourself at the display.

Dragging Out Existence!
The nervous weakly invalid does not enjoy life but merely drags out existence as the phrase is. Unfitted for the active pursuits of life and incapable of partaking of its pleasures to which health alone can give a zest disinclined to social intercourse and a prey to melancholy the valetudinarian is indeed an object of pity. Yet there is nothing in all this that cannot be remedied by that genial alterative tonic and nervine. It is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters which supplies stamina braces the nervous system and overcomes those bodily irregularities of which nervous weakness is most frequently attributable. Disease of the kidneys and bladder imperfect digestion and uterine troubles are fertile sources of debility. Their eradication however becomes a matter of certainty when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are systematically used for that purpose. The Bitters likewise annihilate and prevent fever and ague and other debilitating febrile complaints of a malarial nature.

The Daily [illegible]

SATURDAY MORNING NOV 13, 1875.

EDWARD BROWN, STOKER.

We were very quiet, Mary and I as we strolled out for a chat [illegible] down one of the [illegible] then crossing a stile, we went [illegible] a couple of fields and sat down on the other side, with the high hedge on either side of us and [illegible] that they were [illegible] to mow at the other end, one glorious bed of flowers and soft feathery grass.

Polly I says at last breaking the silence, [illegible] better? [illegible] laying her [illegible]

Better! I have [illegible] g a long draught of [illegible] sweet scent [illegible] better old girl! I feel as if I was growing backward into a boy.

[illegible] fifty last week! she says

Yes," I says, smiling, "and you forty seven next week!" And then we sat thinking [illegible]

[illegible] I says at last as I sat there drinking in that soft breeze and feeling it give me strength "it's worth being ill only to feel as I do now"

[illegible] see I [illegible] very bad [illegible] say I'm not the man to go hanging about church yards and watching funerals. I'm a stoker and my work lies in steamers trading to the East. I'd come home from my last voyage bad with fever and been carried home to die, as my mate thought, and it was being like this, and getting better that had set me thinking so seriously and made me so quiet. Not that I was ever a holey sort of man as any one who knows me will say. And now after getting better, the doctor had said I must go to the country to get strong, so as there was no more voyaging till I was strong, there was nothing for it but to leave the youngsters under the care of the eldest girl a neighbor and come and take lodgings out in this quiet Surrey village.

Polly never thought I should get better and I [illegible] time to [illegible] for about a month before this time as I lay hollow eyed and yellow on the bed knowing, too, how bad I looked, for I used to make young Dick bring me the looking glass every morning, the doctor came as usual and like a blunt Englishman I put it to him flat.

Doctor" says I, "you don't think I shall get better?" and I looked him straight in the face.

Oh come, come my man!" he says smiling, "we never look at the black side like that."

"None of that doctor," I says "Out with it like a man. I can stand it. I've been expecting to be drowned or blown up half my life so I shan't be scared at what you may say."

"Well my man" he says "your symptoms are of a very grave nature. You see the fever had undermined you before you came home and unless——"

All right doctor, I says I understand. You mean that unless you can get a new plate in the boiler she won't stand another voyage."

Oh come! we won't look upon it as a hopeless case" he says "There's always hope." After a little more talk, he shook hands and went away.

Next day when he come I had been thinking it all over and was ready for him. I don't believe I was a bit better. In fact I know I was drifting fast, and I saw it in his eyes as well.

I waited till he had asked me his different questions and then, just as he was getting up to go, I asked him to sit down again.

Polly my dear," I says, "I just want a few words with the doctor," and she put her apron up to her eyes and went out, closing the door after her very softly, while the doctor looked at me curious-like and waited for me to speak.

Doctor," I says "you've about given me up. There, don't shake your head, for I know. Now don't you think I'm afraid to die, for I don't believe I am. But look here, there's [illegible] children [illegible] and if I leave my wife a widow, with the few pounds I have been able to save, what's to become of them? Can't you pull me through?"

"My dear fellow," he says honestly, "I've done everything I can for your case."

"That's what you think, doctor," I says, "but look here I've been at sea thirty years and [illegible] seven weeks. It's been like dodging death with me a score of times. Why, I pulled my wife there regularly out of the hands of death, and I'm not going to give up now. I've been——"

Stop stop," he says gently "You're exciting yourself."

"Not a bit," I says though my voice was quite a whisper "I've had this over all night and I've come to think I must be up and doing my duty."

But, my good man!" he began

"Listen to me doctor," I says "A score of times I might have given up and been drowned but I made a fight for it and was saved. Now I mean to make a fight for it [illegible] here, for the sake of the wife and bairns. I don't mean to die, doctor, without a struggle. I believe this here that life is given to us all as a treasure to keep. We might throw it away by our own folly at any time, but there's hundreds of times when we may preserve it, and we never know whether we can save it till we try. Give's a drink of that water."

He held the glass to my lips and I took a big draught and went on, he seeming all the time to be stopping to humor me in my madness.

"That's better, doctor" I says "Now look here sir speaking as one who has sailed the seas it's a terrible stormy time with me. There's a lee shore close at hand, the fires are drowned out, and unless we can get up a bit of sail there's no chance for me. Now then doctor, can you get up a bit of sail?"

"I will go and send you something that will quiet you," he said, rising

"Thankey doctor" I says smiling to myself "And now look here, I'm not going to give up till the last, and when that last comes and the ship's going down, why I shall have a try if I can't swim to safety. If that fails and I can really feel that it is to be why I hope I shall go down into the great deep calmly, like a hopeful man, praying that somebody above will forgive me all I've done amiss and stretch out His hand to my little ones." [illegible]

He went away and I dropped to sleep, worn out with my exertion.

When I woke, Polly was standing by my bedside watching me, with a bottle and glass on the little table.

As soon as she saw my eyes open she shook [illegible] and poured it into a wine glass.

Yes dear you've to take it directly

Then I shan't take it I says "He's give me up, and that stuff's only to keep me quiet. Polly, just go and make me some beef tea and make it strong."

She looked horrified poor girl, and was about to beg me to take hold of the rotten [illegible] he'd sent me when I held out my shaking hand for it, took the glass, and let it fall over—there was only about a couple of teaspoonfuls in it, and the stuff fell on the carpet.

I saw tears come in her eyes, but she said nothing—only put down the glass and ran out to make the beef tea.

The doctor didn't come till late next day and I was lying very still and drowsy half asleep like, but I was awake enough to hear him whisper to Polly, "Sinking fast" and I heard her give such a heart-broken sob that [illegible] wave came on the sea where I was floating. I struck out with all my might rose over it and floated gently down the other side.

For the next four days—putting it as a drowning man striving for his life like a true-hearted fellow—it was like great foaming waves coming to wash over me but the shore still in sight and me trying hard to reach it.

And it was a grim hard fight, a dozen times I could have given up, folded my arms and said good bye to the dear old watching face safe on shore but a look at that always cheered me, and I fought on again and again till at last the sea seemed to go down and in utter weariness, I turned on my back to float restfully with the tide bearing me shoreward till I touched the sands crept up them and fell down worn out, to sleep in the sun—safe.

That's a curious way of putting it, you may say but it seemed natural to me to mix it up with the things of seagoing life and the manner in which I've seen so many fight hard for their lives. It was just like striving in the midst of a storm to me, and when at last I did fall into a deep sleep I felt surprised like to find myself lying in my own bed with Polly watching by me and when I stretched out my hand and took hers, she let loose that which she had kept hidden from me before, and falling on her knees by my bedside, she sobbed for very joy.

"As much beef-tea and brandy as you can get him to take!" the doctor says, that afternoon and it wasn't long before I got from slops to solids, and then was sent as I told you, into the country to get strong while the doctor got no end of praise for the cure he made.

I never said a word though even to Polly for he did his best, but I don't think any medicine would have cured me then.

I was saying a little while back that I pulled my wife regularly out of the hands of death and of course that was when we were both quite young, though for the matter of that, I don't feel much different and can't feel she the change. That was in one of the Cape steamers when I first took to stoking. They were little ramshackle sort of boats in those days and how it was that more weren't lost puzzles me. It was more due to the weather than the make or the tonnage of the ships I can tell you, but they used to find their way safe to port and all the passengers poor things knowing no better, used to take passage by and make a voyage, too, from which they never got back.

Well, I was working on board a steamer as they used to call the Equator and heavy laden and about twenty passengers on board. We started down Channel with all well till we got right down off the west coast of Africa when there came one of the heaviest storms I was ever in. Even for a well found steamer, such as they can build to day it would have been a hard fight but with our poor shaky wooden tub it was a hopeless case from the first.

Our skipper made a brave fight of it though and tried hard to make for one of the ports but bless you what can a man do when after ten days' knocking about, the coals run out and the fires that have been kept going with wood and oil, and everything that can be thrust into the furnaces are drowned when the paddle wheels are only in the way every bit of sail set is blown clean out of the bolt ropes and at last the ship begins to drift fast for a lee shore?

That was our case, and every hour the sea seemed to get higher and the wind more fierce whilst I heard from more than one man how fast the water was gaining below.

My mate and I didn't want any telling though. We'd been driven up out of the stoke hole like a pair of drowned rats and came on deck to find the bulwarks ripped away and the sea every now and then leaping aboard and washing the lumber about in all directions.

The skipper was behaving very well and he kept us all at the pumps, turn and turn in spells, but we might as well have tried to pump the sea dry and when with the water gaining fast, we told him what we thought, he owned it was no use and we gave up.

We'd all been at it, crew and passengers about forty of us altogether including women—five of them they were, and they were all on deck, lashed in a sheltered place close to the poop. And very pitiful it was to see them fighting hard at first and clinging to the side but only to grow weaker half drowned as they were and I saw two sink down at last and hang drooping like from their lashings dead for not a soul could do them a turn.

I was holding on by the shrouds when the mate got to the skipper's side and I saw by his blank white face what he was telling him. Of course we couldn't hear his words in such a storm, but we didn't want to, for his lips said plain enough

"She's sinking!"

Next moment there was a rush made for the boats, and two of the passengers cut loose a couple of the women, place was made for them before the first boat was too full, she was lowered down, cast off, and a big wave carried her clear of the steamer. I saw her for a moment on the top of the ridge and then she plunged down the other side out of our sight—and that of everybody else. For how long she lived, who can say? She was never picked up or heard of again.

Giving a bit of cheer our chaps turned to the next, and were getting in which there came a wave like a mountain, ripped her from the davits and when I shook the water from my eyes, there she was hanging by one end stove in, and the men who had tried to launch her gone—skipper and mate as well.

There were only seven of us now and I could see besides the three women lashed to the side, and only one of them was alive, and for a bit no one moved everybody being stunned like with horror, but there came a lull and feeling that the steamer was sinking under our feet, I shouted out to the boys to come on and we ran to the last boat climbed in and were casting off when I happened to catch sight of the women lashed under the bulwarks there.

"Come on, you fool" shouts my mate "she's a going down!"

I pray I may never be put to it again like that with all a man's selfish desire for life fighting against him. For a moment I shut my eyes and then began to lower, but I was obliged to open them again and as I did so I saw a wild scared face with long wet hair clinging to it, and a pair of little white hands stretched out to me as if for help.

Hold hard" I shouts.

"No no" roared out two or three "there isn't a moment" and as the boat was being lowered from the davits I made a jump caught the bulwarks with my hands and climbed on board just as the boat kissed the water, was unhooked and floated away.

Then as I crept hand over hand to the girl's side whipped out my knife and was cutting her loose, while her weak arms clung to me I felt a horrible feeling of despair come over me for the boat was leaving us, and I knew what a coward I was at heart as I had to fight with myself so as not to leave the girl to her fate and leap overboard and swim for my life. I got the better of it, though—went down on my knees so as not to see the boat, and got the poor trembling clinging creature loose.

"Now, my lass," I says, "quick"—and I raised her up—"hold on by the side while I make fast a rope around you."

And then I stood up to hail the boat—the boat as warn't there, for in those brief moments she must have capsized and we were alone on the sinking steamer, which now lay in the trough of the sea.

As soon as I got over the horror of the feeling a sort of stony despair came over me but when I saw that pale appealing face at my side looking to me for help that brought the manhood back and in saying encouraging things to her I did myself good.

My first idea was to make something that would float us, but I gave that up directly for I could feel that I was helpless, and getting the poor girl more into shelter, I took a bit of tobacco in a sort of stolid way and sat down with a cork life buoy over my arm one which I had cut loose from where it had hung for [illegible] behind the wheel down fast and the steamer floated still waterlogged for three days when we were picked up by a passing vessel, half starved but [illegible]. And during that time my companion told me that she was the [illegible] of one of the lady passengers on board, and at last when we parted at the Cape, she kissed my hand, and called me her hero who had saved her life, poor grimy me you know.

We warn't long, though, before we met again, for somehow we'd settled that we'd write, and a twelve month after Mary was back in England and my wife. That's why I said I took her like out of the hands of death though in a selfish sort of way being far, you know, from perfect. But what I say speaking as Edward Brown stoker is this. Make a good fight of it, no matter how black things may look and leave the rest to Him.

LAND FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Choice Farms for Sale.

4 000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS

230 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING the Railroad Depot at Salem all under cultivation and suitable for grain or vegetables

940 ACRES four miles southeast of Salem on the railroad with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county with fine springs consisting in part of the old Rector donation claim, on which I raised the present year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety four bushels per acre, grain weighed and ground chained by Mr Alfred Stanton of Salem

2,700 ACRES of prairie and light brush land with timber for farming purposes, bounded by the Willamette river for four miles beautiful lake on the east, boat landings all along the river continuing four miles north of Salem—all choice grain land—the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $15 to $25 per acre. This land will all be immediately resurveyed and can be sold in larger or smaller parcels to suit purchasers. It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage and I can offer any person or persons or company of persons desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette valley near the city of Salem and within reach of the best [illegible] most favorably located more favorable terms than they ever expect to realize again

Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and all the affections which [illegible] rious, marsh, or miasmatic [illegible]

Has been widely used [illegible] last twenty five years, in [illegible] ment of these diseases [illegible] and with such [illegible] that it has gained the [illegible] being infallible. The [illegible] chills once broken by it [illegible] turn until the disease is [illegible] again. This has made it an [illegible] trusted specific for the Fever and [illegible] and the Chills and Fever of the South. [illegible]

Ayer's Ague Cure eradicates the [illegible] from the system and leaves the patient [illegible] before the attack. It thoroughly expels [illegible] so that no Liver Complaint, Rheumatism, [illegible] gia, Dysentery or Debility follow the cure. [illegible] Where Disorders of the Liver and Bowels [illegible] curred from Miasmatic Poison, it [illegible] of them and they disappear. Not only is it [illegible] fectual cure but if taken occasionally by [illegible] exposed to malaria it will expel [illegible] protect them from attack. Travellers [illegible] residents in Fever and Ague localities [illegible] bled to defy the disease. The General [illegible] which is so apt to ensue from continued [illegible] to Malaria and Miasm has no speedier remedy [illegible]

For Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy
